

February 11, 2019

Lexington Announces the Return of the Depot District Music Fest

LEXINGTON, N.C. — Located in the historic train Depot District of uptown Lexington, NC the Depot District Music Fest, to be held at the Breeden Insurance Amphitheater on April 13, will celebrate community, music and the city's full-steam-ahead progress toward the district's revitalization. This year's lineup includes Delbert McClinton, Turnpike Troubadours, Sister Hazel, and The Ultimate Eagles Tribute Band-On The Border.

The inaugural Depot District Music Fest, held in 2017, was a fantastic success featuring the Gin Blossoms and Edwin McCain. In 2018, plans to host the second annual event were de-railed due to the fire at the old Dixie Furniture plant. The 2019 event is sure to build on the momentum created in 2017.

"Lexington is excited to host a talented lineup of performers for an enthusiastic crowd of music lovers at the Breeden Insurance Amphitheater," said City Manager Terra Greene, who is eager to offer the Depot District Music Fest for a second time. "Being able to see high caliber entertainment perform up close and personal at such a warm outdoor venue is a treat for visitors and the entire community. We look forward to welcoming newcomers to Lexington for the Depot District Music Fest and beyond!"

Early bird special festival tickets will go on sale Feb. 11 until midnight Feb. 18. The $30 early bird tickets for adult general admission will be available via www.depotdistrictfest2019.eventbrite.com

On Feb. 19, ticket prices will increase to $45 for adult general admission. On the day of, general admission will be $55 at the gate. Admission for children 12 and under with a paying adult, will be $10 online and $15 at the gate. VIP tickets will be available for $100. Only 125 VIP tickets will be sold that entitles holders to a dedicated front-of-stage viewing area, and access to the exclusive VIP tent which will include a cash bar and dedicated restrooms.

Gates will open to the public at noon at 333 S. Main Street, with the main event entrance on East Third Avenue. The festival will feature music, beer, wine, and a variety of food truck vendors. With reentry permitted, festivalgoers can enjoy dining and shopping in the Uptown Lexington Historic District. The event will end at 9 p.m.

Bringing lawn chairs and blankets is encouraged. No outside food or beverages are permitted except for medical purposes; bags may be subject to inspection. For more information and FAQs related to the Depot District Music Fest, visit depotdistrictfest.com. Rain or shine, all ticket sales are final.

To experience the conversation, join us at Facebook.com/depotdistrictfest @depotfest on Twitter and @depotdistrictfest on Instagram using the hashtag #depotfest.

Media Contacts:

Terra Greene, City Manager

City of Lexington

336.248.3910

Stephanie Saintsing Naset

Preferred Events

336.956.2952

info@depotdistrictfest.com